Jon Gibbard, Director
National Chemical Emergency Centre

Presenter biography

Jon is the Director for the NCEC, one of Ricardo-Energy & Environment's 6 divisions. Jon joined NCEC in 2012, having previously worked in the Energy & Climate Change consultancy for 8 years.

Jon has been involved in NCEC's chemical emergency response and regulatory work throughout that time. Investing in people, systems and processes to ensure NCEC provide best in class advice to our clients.

Jon has been involved in Poison Centre compliance since 2013, conducting the first survey on businesses perspective to draft regulations with Chemical Watch in 2013. Jon then supported the EU commission with a project looking at the economic impact on industry and member states. Since then Jon has ensured NCEC stays at the forefront of understanding member state specific regulations on Poison Centres. NCEC's Poison Centre white paper has become the go-to guide for people trying to understand the regulatory challenge. Jon has also ensured his team remain at the centre of ECHA's thinking on guidance and IT tools with Caroline Raine representing NCEC on both forums and NCEC's team conducting thousands of Poison Centre notification. Jon brings fantastic knowledge and insight to the conference in an easily digestible format.

Jon has a degree in Marine Geography and an Executive MBA from Henley Business School.
